MARI AND ME
SUMMER 2012/13

A Karoo Lamb to the Slaughter

In a flash, he sank in his fangs.
Deeply, greedily, probing her gas-rich tissue.
Her fragile, fertile flesh poisoned,
fractured and laid waste.
"I had no choice," said Count Fracula, in vein.
"I have castles to build, jets to buy,
and pockets to line."

Cloaked in Mystery

In Count Fracula's sick, twisted world,
Nature is just another commodity.
Everything is for sale, and Greed rules the day.
Without powerful public support,
Mother Nature will soon become a shell of her former self.

Well Oiled Promises

"Don't listen to those doom-mongers and tree-huggers," he assured Mother Nature, with a snigger. "It won't hurt a bit..."
