TWEED

If you find yourself reaching for the same blazer over and over, it's time to try something new. Something textured and less predictable is a good way to amp up your style game. This is one jacket that won't need much layering, because it's made of wool and is thicker than your average blazer. Tempted to try your hand at tweed but not sure where to start? A plain variety should be your first option. The grey tone is highly versatile, as it goes with everything hanging in your closet, from shirts and ties to sweatshirts and jeans. And try to avoid played-out combinations of browns and greens, and opt for more contemporary colourways like gray and black instead.
